Ilona Topolcsanyi, founder of Melbourne-based ceramic studio, Cone 11, wants every meal, however casual or ceremonious, to be worthy of the good plates.

Combining her passion for craftsmanship, hospitality and philanthropy, Ilona has created The Good Plate, in partnership with Bendigo.

While these beautiful ceramics will grace the tables of Australian restaurants, they will also represent a great cause.

A percentage of all profits from The Good Plate will go toward Scarf Community, a social enterprise mentoring young people from refugee and migrant backgrounds in hospitality careers.

Ilona likes to think of the plates as Greater Goods—objects that represent good design, elevate good eating and honour a good cause.
